WHEELING, SEPTEMBER 16, 1893.

The Tin Plate Industry.

The Democratic howl against the tin plate duty is still fresh in the public mind. When the McKinley bill placed a tariff on tin plate, so that a new industry might be created in this country a cry went up from every Democratic paper in the country. No other clause in the tariff bill was so viciously attacked. It was denounced as an outrageous proposition, and ridiculed because, as was asserted, tin plate could never be made in this country—we were not competent, conditions were against us, or something or other. But the McKinley bill was passed with the tin plate clause in it, and Republicans ignored Democratic sneers and were satisfied to await developments.

The clause did not go into effect for several months, but Democrats kept up their attacks and did everything in their power to discourage the establishment of the new industry. The law has been in operation a little more than two years. Immediately upon its passage, however, capital began to build tin plate mills. While the buildings were being erected, and even after the fires had started, Democratic papers clung tenaciously to the argument that tin plate could not and would not be made in America and denounced the "vicious tax" as useless, because it could accomplish nothing. Everybody doubtless notices that the attacks have ceased to a great extent. The reason is that the Republican position has been vindicated and another Democratic prophecy has failed.

Thursday there appeared before the ways and means committee at Washington a delegation from the American Tin Plate Association to protest against a repeal of the duty. It was there developed that the industry in the two years since the law went into force has attained great proportions; that it is growing to be one of our great manufacturing interests and is giving employment to thousands of people at good American wages. During the hearing W. C. Cronmeyer, president of the Tin Plate Association said:

"When I appeared before the committee some years ago, I represented an industry which did not exist in the country. To-day I am happy to say I represent an industry which exists to a large extent. Since the law of 1890 over forty industries have been established, representing an invested capital of over four million dollars, which have manufactured 108,000,000 pounds of tin and tinned plate, and our country has paid no more than they have for the past ten years. The importer of tin plate does not desire tin plate placed on the free list, but would be better satisfied with a reduction."

Note that the consumer pays no more for tin plate than he has for the past ten years. What has become of the charge that the McKinley bill taxed the poor man's dinner pail? Thousands of poor men are given employment and their tinware is not increased in price. As to the wages of the tin plate workers, Mr. Niedringhaus stated to the committee that "we pay 150 per cent more in wages than is paid in Europe. Labor gets all the benefit of the duty. If the duty is reduced it will reduce labor."

In the face of these facts will the Wilson bill repeal the tin plate tariff? We shall see.

Workingmen and Their Friends.

Referring to the INTELLIGENCER's statement that the wage workers are able to distinguish who is their real friend, William McKinley or Lawrence T. Neal, the Register says:

Exactly, and the wage workers of Ohio and of the United States said so most emphatically at the polls last November, when the great Republican state of Ohio came within an ace of going Democratic and did elect one Democratic elector.

Yes, they were deluded by the buncoists, and now they are sorry. In the news columns of the same issue of the Register in which the above paragraph appeared was a lengthy Washington dispatch headed as follows: "The New Tariff Bill—The Committee on Ways and Means Seeking Information—Iron and Steel Workers Talk—They Insist That a Protective Tariff is Necessary to a Successful Continuance of Those Industries."

The dispatch was an account of the visit of a delegation from the Amalgamated Association of Iron and Steel workers to the ways and means committee to ask that the McKinley bill be let alone. They told the committee that they did not want a change in the tariff. One spokesman, C. H. Kaufmann, of Bridgeport, Ohio, put the whole case in a nutshell when he said: "We know that if the tariff is reduced our wages will be reduced, the men who do the work will have to suffer. The manufacturers have told you the truth."

A number of these workmen addressed the committee, all of them declaring that tariff reduction would be a detriment to both manufacturers and workingmen. These men now know, if they did not know last November, who is their real friend—that William McKinley and the Republican party gave them the law which is now attacked by the free traders in Congress and which they are asking be retained.

Some of these workmen voted the Democratic ticket, but they did not do so because they thought the Democratic party was on the right side of the question. A striking illustration of this fact is afforded by the case of Conrad Auth, a glass-worker, who was also before the ways and means committee Thursday. Here is the Register's report of it:

Conrad Auth, representing the same industry, said the protective tariff had been of great benefit to the glassworkers of the country, and asked that Congress make no change in the present duties.

"Then you think that a protective tariff is a good thing?" asked Mr. Daisell.

"Yes, sir."

"Then why do you persist in voting the Democratic ticket?"

"I can't help it; I was built that way."

That's it, exactly. How many thousands of workmen voted the free trade ticket last fall for the same reason—"because they were built that way?" They know, like Mr. Auth, that they were wrong, but party prejudice was stronger than principle, and now, like this glass worker, they are praying that the Congress they helped to elect will not do the very thing they voted for.

Conditions are no longer such that a Republican senate stands between a tariff tinkering house and President and American industries, and the workingmen of the Conrad Auth kind, who voted from prejudice rather than principle, are having their eyes opened.

How the Props Are Falling.

The Democratic one of the ways and means committee is hearing something drop every day.—Intelligencer.

Yes, the props are falling from under the McKinley inquiry very rapidly.—Register.

Is that so? Well, will the Register kindly publish for the benefit of its readers the names of all those gentlemen who have appeared before the ways and means committee since the hearings began, and state what proportion of them have declared the McKinley bill to be an "iniquity," also the proportion that have pled with the ways and means committee not to disturb the tariff?

Almost without exception those who have appeared asking for a reduction of the tariff have been either foreigners or importers, one man even acknowledging to the committee that he was the paid attorney of some importers and was to get a handsome fee if he succeeded in convincing the committee that the duty should be taken off the foreign products they were interested in. No large delegations of workmen or manufacturers have been there to "knock the props from the inquiry." On the contrary such delegations have appeared to protest in the name of American industries and American labor against any change in the tariff whatever.

Notwithstanding all this, every one knows that the argument and testimony being heard daily by the ways and means committee will have little weight with the Democratic members. They are going to demolish the protective tariff, and they will carry out their intention, regardless of every protest. The platform pledge for a tariff for revenue only will be kept. Democrats who comforted themselves with the belief that the party didn't mean what it said will find how vain were their hopes. As the Register says, the props will be knocked from under protection, but it will be against the protests of industrial America.

But the people demanded by their votes that this be done, say the "tariff reformers." The people undoubtedly elected the free trade party to power, but the people were the victims of a gigantic confidence game, and the people themselves are beginning to realize it. They realized it "when the mills shut down" and were told by the owners that uncertainty regarding future tariff legislation made it necessary to go slow. They realize it now when they read the daily reports of the tariff hearings in the ways and means committee room. Protection Democrats and workmen remember how they were assured that the free trade plank in the platform never would be carried out, that it was put there simply to catch free trade votes; and how Democratic organs in the industrial districts, including Wheeling, avoided publishing that tariff plank, merely printing a garbled version of it, and that the only circulation it got was through Republican papers and on posters issued by Republican committees. The people were taken in by the Democratic confidence game. They know it now when it is too late.

Our esteemed contemporary again calls attention to the fact that four Republican silver senators are obstructing the passage of the repeal bill in the senate. Honesty is a good policy and the Register should be honest enough to, at least, not attempt to suppress the fact that twice that many Democratic senators are in sympathy with those four Republican silver cranks; also that the great majority of Republican senators are supporting the repeal bill. It is known that without the assistance of the Republican senators the repeal bill cannot pass the senate. Doesn't the Register know this?

LARRY NEAL will read the answer to his opening campaign speech in the election returns the morning following the election, but it will not be an answer calculated to give him a hearty appetite for his breakfast.

THE INTELLIGENCER's relay race from Pittsburgh to Wheeling, in connection with the L. A. W. meet next week, will be an interesting feature of an interesting series of events.

THERE ought to be enough silver in Senator Faulkner's compromise scheme to satisfy the conservative silver men, but there is too much of it to satisfy honest dollar men, who, happily, are in the majority in the senate.

Where is the New Station?

For over a year the Pittsburgh, Wheeling & Kentucky railway company importuned the city council to grant it space at the north end of the wharf for a new station. After a stubborn fight against the grant by river men a compromise was made to which all agreed, and which the railroad company accepted. That has been some time ago, now, and yet there is not a sign of preparation for the erection of the new station. When the matter was up in council it was said on good authority that the company had a fund of $75,000 in the treasury for the work, and that it was anxious to get it started at once. People are justified now in asking why the building is not in progress. The good weather is rapidly passing, and soon the building operations will be hampered by storms. The community has a right to demand that the railroad people show their good faith in the matter by beginning the work. They have certainly had ample time to get it well under way.

The present old structure is discreditable to the railroad and the city alike. It is not adequate to the demand, is inconvenient as well as unattractive, and it ought to be replaced with a modern structure as soon as possible.

This bombardment of Rio Janeiro is demonstrating that the rebels are poor marksmen, but the damage done is great enough to warrant the assertion that revolution is no small affair. A great crisis has been reached in the Brazilian war.

It is hoped that the windbags in the senate may stop talking within the next two months, so that President Cleveland may have some cause to issue a Thanksgiving proclamation.

DOCTORS ASTONISHED.

Something They Cannot Understand or Explain.

It Makes Even the Medical Fraternity Open Its Eyes.

If This Is Not a Wonder Worker Who Should Like to Know What Is.

Doctors are surprised at any cure of paralysis, but there is one form of paralysis which has been pronounced absolutely incurable—locomotor ataxia. This is indeed, the most serious and dreaded of all nervous difficulties.

Having so long pronounced this disease incurable, the astonishment, not to say amazement, of the doctors can be imagined when they learned from Mr. John H. Golding who resides at 160 Christopher street, New York City, the following wonderful facts:

"I was taken six months ago with locomotor ataxia, or creeping paralysis. The numbness of limbs and diseases rapidly increased until I could not walk nor stand without assistance; could not button my clothes or dress myself without help."

"On the sixth day of October I commenced taking Dr. Greene's Nervura blood and nerve remedy and have taken four bottles and can now walk without a cane, and am rapidly gaining every day."

"The numbness has almost completely left my limbs and I feel first rate. I eat and sleep well, and I can recommend Dr. Greene's Nervura blood and nerve remedy, since I know that it has saved my life."

"I was refused admittance into St. John's Hospital because they said my case was incurable."

"But Dr. Greene's Nervura blood and nerve remedy has done its work well. It is the wonder of my friends that I am alive to-day, and when I tell them that this medicine cured me when the doctors had pronounced my case as incurable, they say it was a miracle."

MR. JOHN H. GOLDING.

"I was two months under doctors' hands and getting worse. I was discouraged when I began to try Dr. Greene's Nervura blood and nerve remedy. But to-day I am well. A week ago I walked eight miles and felt no bad results."

"I am now feeling like a new man, my nerves are strong and I feel happy. I hope that this will be received by all suffering from disease."

It does really seem that there is no disease which baffles this marvellous remedy, Dr. Greene's Nervura blood and nerve remedy. It cures almost everything, and it will cure a terrible disease like the above, heretofore pronounced absolutely incurable by doctors, how much more certainly and surely will it cure all the ordinary complaints of life. If you are sick you are not wise if you do not give this health restorer a trial. It is truly the greatest cure of disease in existence. Druggists keep it for $1.00 and it is purely vegetable and perfectly harmless.

Physicians have been everywhere surprised at its wonderful powers to cure disease and they unhesitatingly recommend it to all suffering from ill health to use it, because it is the discovery and prescription of a well-known physician, Dr. Greene of 35 W. Fourteenth street, New York, the successful specialist in nervous and chronic diseases, who can be consulted free of charge, personally or by letter.
